DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

4. Claims 1-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Polaschegg USPN 4894164 in view of Storey et al. USPN 4202760.

Claims 1-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Polaschegg USPN 4894164. Polaschegg describes a blood treatment device having a blood purification element divided into two chambers by a semipermeable membrane whose first chamber 115 is part of a dialysis fluid loop and whose second chamber 202 is part of an extracorporeal blood loop 202. The device has a fluid supply line 125 for supplying fresh dialysis fluid to the first chamber and a dialysis removal line 125 for removing used dialysis fluid from the first chamber. The device has a control unit 106 and an analysis unit 111. The device comprises at least one sensor 109 and a pump 114. The analysis unit is capable of determining the blood purification performance (col. 6, lines 26-38). Polaschegg does not disclose the device differentiates between two materials namely sodium and one of potassium, glucose, creatinine, calcium, or phosphate. Storey discloses removal of these substances in an apparatus and method for preparation of a hemodialysis solution (col. 5, lines 1-62). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to provide the invention of Polaschegg with the ability to monitor the blood purification of claimed materials for the benefit of returning to the patient blood with a normal concentration of the materials, which Storey teaches is desired (Storey col. 1, lines 45-50).

The limitations of claims 2-10 are directed to an intended use of the article. Intended use must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. See In re Casey, 152 USPQ 235 (CCPA 1967) and In re Otto, 136 USPQ 458, 459 (CCPA 1963). If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim limitations.

Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Jacqueline F. Stephens whose telephone number is (571) 272-4937. The examiner can normally be reached on Monday-Friday 9:00-5:30.
